Manhattan, Block: 1210, Lot: 19

127 West 79th Street - Upper West Side/Central Park West Historic District

A neo-Renaissance style apartment building with Romanesque style elements designed by Gronenberg and Leuchtag and built in 1926. Application is to create a master plan governing the future installation of windows.

HDC Testimony

HDC's Review Committee had some difficulty fully understanding exactly what is proposed for this building. Based on what we did understand, we do not believe that colonial white is an appropriate color for the proposed windows, as they were historically dark in color. Additionally, we believe that the master plan should propose windows that match those in the historic photos, which appear to be six over six double hung and multi light casement windows.
