Automat Fans Unite! Save the Former Horn & Hardart Automat (Broadway & W. 104th Street, Manhattan)

View Current Signatures - Sign the Petition

To: New York City Landmarks Preservation Commission

We, the undersigned, support the preservation of one of the last surviving automat structures in New York City.

Located on Broadway and West 104th Street in Manhattan, this joyous Art-Deco survivor was designed by F.P. Platt & Brother and built in 1930. Telltale signs of its former use include the facade's monumental, arched show window (the better to reveal the technological marvels within) and ravishing polychrome terra-cotta ornamentation, which remain largely intact despite later storefront remodelings (for images, please go to <http://www.landmarkwest.org/advocacy/automat.html>).

Coin-operated glass-and-chrome wonders, Horn & Hardart's Automats revolutionized the way Americans ate when they opened up in Philadelphia and New York in the early twentieth century. In a country where the industrial revolution had just taken hold, eating at a restaurant with self-serve vending machines rather than waitresses and Art-Deco architecture instead of stuffy dining rooms was an unforgettable experience. The Automat served freshly made food for the price of a few coins, and no one made a better cup of coffee. By the peak of its popularity from the Great Depression to the post-war years the Automat was more than an inexpensive place to buy a good meal; it was a culinary treasure and an emblem of the times.

On Tuesday, October 17, 2006, the New York City Landmarks Preservation Commission will hold a public hearing to consider designating this building as an official NYC Landmark. We have lost too many former Automats already, most recently the one on West 57th Street in Manhattan. Let's not lose the opportunity to save this one!

Sincerely,

The Undersigned

Committee to Save the RKO Keith's Theatre of Flushing Inc. | ◆ | One of (if not "the original") Automat vending arrays and counter is on display in the Smithsonian Institution in Washington D.C. This is prime evidence of the importance of the Automat as both a cultural and historic icon. It is certainly worth preserving in a city like New York , which is one of the great beacons of the world! Although I currently live in the borough of Queens, the Automat was a center of my life (and my family's) when we went out for a "day on the town". This is a reminder of that important part of the techno-history (of self-service) which is critical to preserve. In the face of much of the "careless development" that is going on throughout New York, it isthe responsibility of LPC to save some of the "crumbs" of beauty, culture and history that remain and are vital to a great metropois! Lpc has been created to be a critical step in that "stewardship" of preservation and should not be remiss in their duty to protect and defend! Please designate the Automat! |

164. Linda Levendusky Although I live out of town, in Chicago, I come to New York every couple months and went out of my way last weekend just to see the former automat building at 104th Street. For me, much of the charm, allure and vitality of New York lies in its scattershot mingling of old and new, rich and poor. I'm continually amazed and delighted by the happenstance discovery of gems like the automat. It's what keeps me happily walking the streets and returning to New York as often as I can. Buildings like the automat represent the glamour of an old New York that visitors, full of movie images of the city from different periods, still look for. Finds like this, glimpsed amidst more prosaic buildings, can make an even bigger impression. It's just such finds like this that can make a trip for me.  1853 W. Iowa St., #2W, Chicago, IL 60622

I regret the loss of the Automat on 57th St near 6th Ave, but I do hope that you will landmark the Automat at Broadway & 104th St. This building is one of the last few around, and such a loss would scar New York by not having a grand representation of a cultural, architectural, social, and historical mecca. When strolling along Broadway, its elaborate Art Deco '30 facade always caught my eye, and it is a prime example of its once extraordinary interior |

		ambiance. I will not go into detail, but encourage the Landmarks Commission to take the necessary measures to rescue a Great Landmark!
		The Automat, once a prime facet of NYC culture, is a chapter that needs to be acknowledged through landmark status. Once the Automat is designated, it can continue to be a worthwhile educational resource, and a 104th St Art Deco charmer that would be "here to stay!" The W 57th St Automat was lost last spring despite vast public support for a number of years. Please work with us, Chairman Tierney, since we inhabit our communities and understand them best.
